Office of Management and Budget

FY2016 Quarter 1

Overview

Goal Statement

- Strategically expand high-quality, high-value shared services to improve performance and efficiency throughout government.

Urgency

- Most Federal agencies have similar administrative functions that require the investment of increasingly scarce resources. Human resources, financial management, and payroll, for example, are common administrative functions that all agencies need, but not all agencies are equally efficient at managing. By creating Shared Service Providers (SSPs), and concentrating the delivery of administrative services within a smaller number of agencies, duplicative efforts and costly systems upgrades can be reduced. Further, by giving this task to agencies with the right expertise, we can free up resources for mission critical activities, reduce risk in systems implementations, and deliver cost-effective support to agencies.
- Shared Services for administrative functions has long been common in the private sector and in other governments but has struggled to get momentum in the U.S. Federal Government. To date, most users of shared services have been small agencies and commissions. Cross-servicing across Cabinet-level departments has not taken place. This reduces the economies of scale for shared service providers and continues a disjointed and redundant approach to federal accounting, HR, acquisitions, etc.
- The passage of the Data Act in FY 2014, with a narrow three year implementation window and specifying the creation and adoption of accounting standards, will be a difficult task for those not using a SSP. Agencies participating in shared service arrangements for financial, procurement, HR, payroll or performance reporting systems will be able adopt the changes more rapidly and at reduced costs. The bill requires both Inspector General (IG) and Government Accountability Office (GAO) review and audit of the adoption of the standards shortly after their issuance. If those standards are adopted first by the shared service providers, customers will benefit from that early adoption both economically and logistically.

Actions (Short Term)

- Unified Shared Services Management housed in General Services Administration (GSA), established by the Office of Management and Budget (OMB), is responsible for achieving five goals:
  1. Improve shared services efficiency, economies of scale, marketplace health and sustainability.
  2. Increase shared services adoptions and satisfaction among executive agencies.
  3. Enable service providers to effectively deliver high-quality shared services.
  4. Provide integrated, consistent, and sustainable management and oversight across shared service functions, the services made available by providers, and how agencies consume those services.
  5. Enhance the agility of agencies to implement and adhere to current and future government-wide legislation and management reform initiatives.
